

A strategic textbook for the coming decades ...

This may be the most remarkable book yet by strategic philosopher Gregory Copley.

We are in a world already at war with itself. It is a world in which urban globalists fear and despise regional nationalists, and vice-versa. It is a time when the concept of the nation-state — sovereignty incarnate — has slipped from the minds of many. The populations of the mega-cities have — as they have in different ways in the past — assumed that they alone represented “the state”. The response to this has been a voter revolt in many areas of the world and the sudden re-appearance of the schisms between cities and regions.

The Author, Australian Gregory Copley, who has advised many heads of state and government, is the author of major works on strategy and intelligence, including The Art of Victory (2006); and UnCivilization: Urban Geopolitics in an Age of Chaos (2012). He is President of the Washington DC-based International Strategic Studies Assoc., and the Zahedi Center for the Study of Monarchy, Traditional Governance & Sovereignty.
